

Caroline's FUTURE FEARS

In Spring of my freshman year, I told my entry mates a story about myself concerning my biggest fears.

3) R RATED Certain Movies

4) IIII Crosswalks

I listed some of those fears, and the reasons why I feared them.

I ended, however, with my Greatest Fear of all!

I told them the truth. That, whenever I thought about the future, all I ever saw was a big BLACK HOLE!

That's why I'm Scared.

Since before I applied to college, the future has appeared in my mind as a black hole.

This is why I applied to so many colleges. I could not see anything ahead of me. Just black.

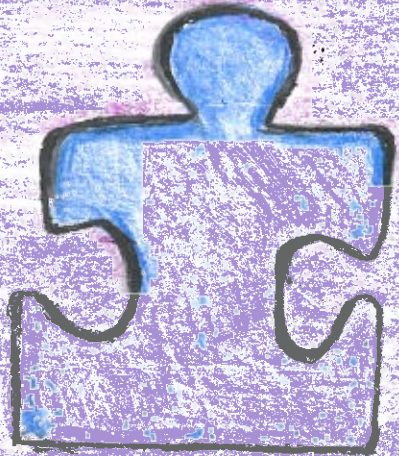

I know that this is partly because the college application process was so overwhelming. (I applied to 12 Schools!)

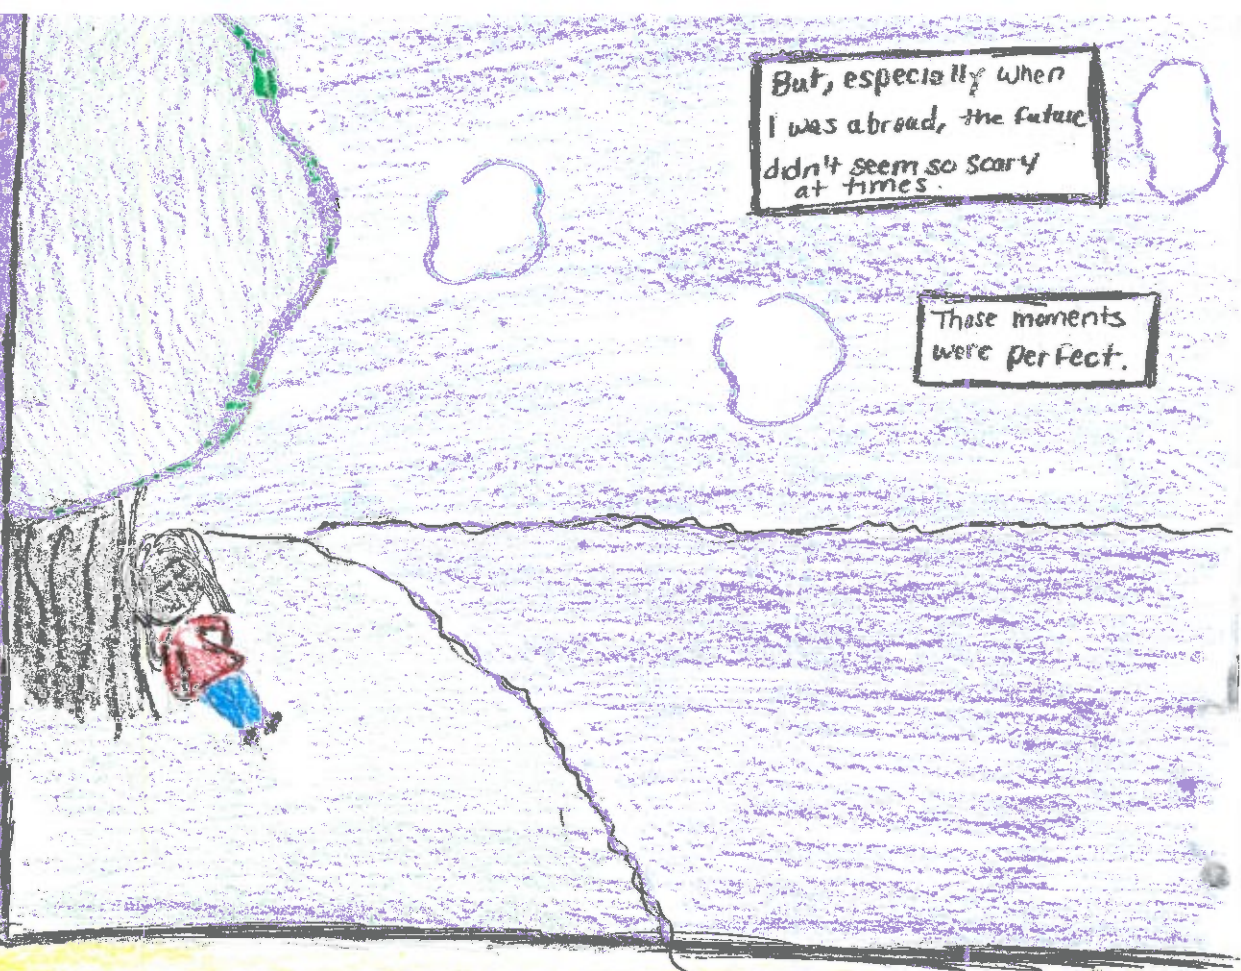

But even after I realized William was perfect, I still held onto fears of the future.

I know that this is Partly because the future I fear most isn't my own.

But, especially when I was abroad, the future
didn't seem so scary
at times.

Those moments were perfect.

At the moment, the future's Probably the hardest thing anyone could ask me to explain. Even now, as a Senior, I still see that black hole. All I can do is Keep working, and pray things will turn out OK.
